TOWN COUNCIL MEETS

Secretary-Treasurer Was Appointed No Successor to Late Ald. Larkin Will be Elected. Other Important Business

The first meeting of the town council since July 20th was held in the council chambers last Friday evening with Mayor Bray in the chair and Councilors Service, McKay and Yates present.

It may be explained that the regular meetings have not been held owing to the absence of Ald. Yates being on a holiday east and the recent illness and death of Ald. Larkin, while the other councillors frequently had business out of town that made it impossible to get a quorum.

The first business was the adoption of the minutes of the last regular meeting and those of an extraordinary meeting later calling for nominations for a councillor to fill Ald. Larkin's place.

It being explained that there were no nominations made the question of what should be done was asked and disposed of by the mayor stating that as the councillors had done their part in calling for nominations he thought they had done their duty and would have to struggle along with the present members.

A letter was read from Mrs. Larkin acknowledging a letter of sincere condolence in her bereavement.

Several other communications were read and disposed of without motion, most of which had to do with the disposition of the town's debentures, which for the present should be left for the council to decide upon.

A number of accounts being presented to the Finance Committee and approved of Aids. Yates and Service moved that the following be passed:

J. Laurie.....$ 1.00
W. Service.....28 90
King Lee.....12 75
McKay Hardware Co.....2 45
Alberta Transfer.....21 58
Gleichen Trading Co.....2 25

Some discussion arose over the school tax and it was shown that next year the town would be obliged to attend to all the assessment and collecting of school taxes according to the laws of Alberta. It was stated that the town had so far met the demands of the trustees and on motion of Aids Service and Yates it was determined to pay the school board $500 on account.

A request from Engineer Emerick that four lights be placed in the water-power plant and it being explained that Mr. Vigar had offered to supply the four lights at $3 per month Aids Service and McKay moved that Mr. Emerick's request be granted.

There were four applications for position of secretary-treasurer and after considerable discussion it was moved by Aids Service and McKay that the application of Peter McLean be accepted and was unanimously accepted.

The Fire Brigade held a meeting in the Fire Hall Friday evening, which is the first Chief Marshall has been able to attend for many months. Everything was found in good condition and the boys expect to take a more active interest from now on that their chief is ready to take the lead once more.

J. S. Ogilvie spent a couple of days in town this week visiting his many friends.

Queenstown News

The song of the binder has given way to the roar of the threshing machine, and a terrible noise they do make. We have five threshing outfits west of the lake and seven on the east side. Owing to the short straw and fine weather, all of them are making good progress.

Soon, very soon, we shall meet at the ferry—and we all know what that means.

This season, as usual, quite a number of homesteaders from the Red Deer River country, north of Brooks and Carlstadt, have come up with teams and bundle racks to help the Queenstown farmers thresh. All these people, having travelled across much country, are of the unanimous opinion that Queenstown is "The Garden Spot of Alberta."

Annie Aasgard, who has been in Calgary for some time undergoing an operation for appendicitis, is reported getting well again.

Harry Thompson has rented his farm to Ernest Burk for 3 years for a straight rental of $3 per acre.

Jake Jordan has sold his home-stand to M. Bertrand, who has land adjoining.

The Queenstown Farmer's Union held a well attended meeting, Saturday evening, September 20th, in the Pioneer school. Among other business transacted, it was decided to purchase car loads of flour, apples and fence posts. The annual meeting will be held December 5th in the Pioneer school. The young people are getting up a fine program, including a play, for the occasion.

C. H. Houghtelen, our energetic weed inspector, is now busy going around looking after the threshing machines. Threshermen should be on their guard.

The ratepayers of the municipality of Marquis, which includes Queenstown, will attend a general meeting, November 17th, and nomination for councillors, November 21st at Lake McGregor school. The election will be December 1st.

An entertainment and supper was given by the Ladies Aid at the Lake McGregor school house, Monday, September 15th. There was a large attendance and all had a fine time.

Through the combined efforts of the Farmers' Union executive and the Consumers' League of Calgary, a public market has been established at that place, to which farmers can now ship their produce. The Grain Growers' Grain Co. have agreed to receive and put the stuff on the market for a very small cost of handling it. This should be good news to every Queenstown farmer and a great inducement to mixed farming, for we have all found that as soon as our local market is filled, our produce becomes hard to get rid of at any price. If you have any butter, eggs, poultry, potatoes, or other products to sell this fall and find no local demand for same, notify and ship to Grain Growers' Grain Co., Stall 23, Public Market, Calgary.

50,000 BUSHEL OF GRAIN ALREADY SHIPPED

All considered for this time of the year, grain is coming into the Gleichen elevators quite freely, in fact a nice business has been done the past week, and generally speaking, the grade is considered very good, the major portion of both wheat and oats grading No. 1, according to those who sold.

During the past week there has been received at the elevators: 25,009 bushels of wheat, 20,021 bushels of oats, 200 bushels of flax, and 1,400 of barley. It is said the flax was from last year's crop. So far no shipments from the loading platforms are reported.

As most people expected, the prices of all grains have gone down during the past week. Wheat has been reduced by three cents, oats and barley two cents, and flax ten cents.

During the week there have been sixteen cars of grain shipped, consisting of twelve cars of wheat containing 16,000 bushels, and four cars of oats, comprising 4,500 bushels. Thus it is seen that the elevator men are keeping their elevators clear for the big shipments that may be expected during the next few weeks.

The weather up to Saturday was excellent for threshing, but a heavy wind and rain Sunday night and Monday morning compelled a cessation until noon Tuesday, but since, all the machines are running at full speed and the weather has been ideal.

With this issue the CALL starts its regular reports of the amount of grain received and shipped from Gleichen, which will, no doubt, be watched with the same interest as in former years.

Obituary

Mention was made in last week's issue of the untimely death of Mat. McCann, in the Holy Cross Hospital, Calgary, after intense suffering and agony from injuries sustained in a runaway.

Funeral services were conducted in Calgary, at Graham & Thompson's undertaking parlors, Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

The services were conducted by a Calgary minister and Rev. Mathews, of the Methodist Church, Strathmore, the pastor of the bereaved family, also spoke a few words of the sterling character of the deceased. A number of intimate friends from Gleichen and Strathmore were present. Beautiful floral offerings, silent yet eloquent tokens of sympathy from friends here and at Strathmore, and also a wreath from the Odd Fellows, completely covered the casket. Interment was in the Calgary cemetery, beside his brother George, who was taken by typhoid only three years ago.

Mathew E. McCann was born in Stobbington, near Chesley, Bruce county, Ontario, twenty-six years ago. He came west with his parents eleven years ago, settling near Namaka, and practically the entire period was spent in this neighborhood. He purchased a half-section of the relinquished Blackfoot land, and was just preparing to thresh one of the best crops known in this district, when the fatal accident occurred. He was an industrious young man, of a sunny, happy disposition that made him a host of friends.

He leaves to mourn his decease: his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert McCann; a sister, Miss Pearl McCann; his cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McCann; and David Patchell, a long time friend who made his home with the family.

Much sympathy is expressed for the bereaved ones in this time of sorrow.

The friends of Mrs. Lafferty are pleased to see her walking about town the past few days, after her long illness resulting from an accident in a runaway.

Angus McLeay has the contract for building C. H. Padley's new block and already has considerable gravel and sand on the premises for the concrete foundation.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Hume, of Calgary, spent a couple of days this week visiting her mother, Mrs. Marshall, and her brothers and sister.

Miss Davis has opened a dress-making parlor, Crowfoot St., entry via the Telephone Exchange stairway, where she is prepared to meet all the ladies of Gleichen. Miss Davis has also taken over the agency for the Spirella model from Miss Convey and will be pleased to meet all former customers and others interested.

Owing to the heavy wind and rain Sunday night, the threshing crews made the town lively Monday and Tuesday, but they all are hard at work once more.

Mr. J. T. Johnston has resigned his position as secretary-treasurer of the Gleichen Town Council and so soon as the books are audited after the end of the month will turn them over to his successor, which should be about Oct. 4th.

The appointment of a town secretary-treasurer could not be given to all the applicants, so it may be just remarked that the council has apparently chosen a very good and competent man in the person of Mr. P. McLean, and it seems to be a very popular appointment. He is a man with a good education, a neat writer, a reputation of being very accurate in his bookkeeping and very attentive to business. In fact he should prove a good vice to Mr. Johnston, who has admittedly proved an exceptionally good man for the position.

Church Notes

Next Sunday—September 28th—the annual harvest Thanksgiving service will be held in St. Andrew's church, when Bishop Pinkham will be present to assist Rev. E. Cox Clark. Everyone will be heartily welcome at these services.

Preparations are being made for the proper observance of next Sunday, which is rally day at the union Sunday school. It is planned to have the school (at 10 o'clock) very interesting, and the regular evening service will also be under the auspices of the Sunday school, and Mr. Wm. Gordon will deliver an address. You are invited to be present.

Rev. Hamilton, of Killam, Alta., had charge of the Presbyterian services last Sabbath evening.

H. C. Padley was up from Basano last week and made arrangements to start the construction of a new block on his lots on Third avenue.

Tommy Burns had another fire in his Calgary clothing store the other night.

Several sessions of the Gleichen public school were cut short the first of the week, on account of the chilly weather, as the furnace was not in running order.

Brooks had a disastrous fire last Thursday night when an entire business block was burned up, entailing a loss of about $25,000. The Pacific Cold Storage Co., of Gleichen, who have a meat market there, lost their entire stock and building, yet were ready for business the next day.

Nurse Milne, late with the Scottish Nursing Home, Calgary, has taken a house in Gleichen where she will receive maternity cases.

HARVEST-TIME GOSSIP

M. Bollinger's Oats Yield 142 Bus. Per Acre—Other Heavy Yields— Fine Garden Truck, Too.

W. F. Durston, of Queenstown, on Saturday last presented the CALL with the finest corn we have yet seen grown in these parts. He brought in a sack full of ripe corn, and the measurements showed the ears were 7½ inches long and 5½ inches around the butt. The kernels are well matured. He describes the corn as "Yankee Squaw corn," which he imported from South Dakota, and said he had brought in this sack full to distribute among his Gleichen friends for seed next year. Besides giving the CALL a half-dozen for seed he gave us a couple of dozen of another variety of green corn which made as fine munching as we ever tackled.

It is stated that M. Bollinger's wheat (which won first prize in the standing Grain Competition) has yielded 46 bushels to the acre. But Marcellas has something even greater to talk about, for it is said his oats yielded 142 bushels to the acre. The CALL has not had the pleasure of interviewing Mr. Bollinger on this, but the information comes from a very reliable source.

J. B. Johannsen, of Standard, showed the CALL some samples of the finest potatoes seen in this district. He says he has two acres of them, and that some of the same variety which he grew last year are still just as solid and good eating as those of this year's crop. They are of the very best keeping quality.

Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Mace were in town Tuesday from Arrowwood Creek, and left at the CALL office a sack of the biggest potatoes we have

But these attempts of hers were useless, much to Joan's relief, and presently on her earnest remonstrance her mother promised to discontinue them. It was one morning early that she made this promise, and in the afternoon of the same day, the vision came upon her when she was least expecting it.

She was in the drawing-room at the time, having ventured downstairs for only the second time since Lady Martin's ball. Thorold and Joan had been out, and coming home had met Wilton Mayne and Dora, and all four returned to Jernyn Gardens together in order that Mayne might see a recent sketch of Joan's which Dora declared was nothing less than a work of the purest and highest genius. It was quite suddenly while they were all chatting and laughing together that Dora cried out:

"Oh, what is the matter with Mrs. Durand?"

All turned and looked, and Thorold recognized at once that fixed and rigid expression Mrs. Durand had worn the night of the ball. Joan's face turned pale as death, and she gave a low cry, and Thorold at once put his arm about her. Dora, too, experienced a sudden fear and she shrank back behind Wilton Mayne, who for his part looked considerably surprised.

"What is the matter?" he asked. "Shall I speak to her?" whispered Thorold to Joan.

The girl shook her head, and she found the firm pressure of his arm about her waist indescribably comforting. Suddenly Dora screamed, and at the same moment Mrs. Durand began to speak; all her features absolutely calm and rigid except the mouth and lips, which moved with the horrible semblance of being used by some other and alien personality.

Sorrow and peril, came the low musical voice that Thorold had heard before and that was so different from Mrs. Durand's own tones; sorrow and peril enough—

"Who for? who for?" cried Dorothy in a high, excited voice.

For a moment there was silence. Then the voice began again:

"Surely, it said, whosever sheddeth man's blood, by man his blood shall be shed. There is one here who has slain a man; there is one here who must slay the slayer."

The voice ceased, and Thorold stepped forward, bearing with him Joan whom he held still close to him with a grip so strong and fierce that she could hardly bear it.

"A—lie, he said, and his face was very terrible."

"A—lie, he said the second time and it seemed to him that it was his own dead brother whom he strove against. A—lie, he repeated the third time, and then he laughed a little, but not mirthfully, and bent his head and kissed Joan full upon the lips."

CHAPTER XVIII
The Burglary

Fortunately, this time Mrs. Durand seemed to suffer a less complete exhaustion than had previously resulted from these strange visitations. She never had any memory of what she said in them; but while hitherto they had always been succeeded by fits of deep depression and bodily and mental weakness, on this occasion she seemed to fall at once into a very cheerful, contented mood. Joan took her up as of old, and remained with her some time. When certain she was all right, she went down again to Dora who was still waiting, and who was alone, Thorold and Mayne

Also on Face. Began to Ooze Water-like Matter. Torture of Itchiness. Pimples Festered and Enlarged. Cured in Two Weeks, Thanks to Cuticura Soap and Ointment.

Mt. Elgin, Ind. Institute, Muncie, Ontario. "I suffered from skin trouble for two months before taking Cuticura Remedies."

The trouble started from itchiness on the back of the hands. When irritated, this itchiness turned to pimples. These pimples soon began to spread up the arms, from the arms to my whole body. They also came up on the face. Having spread over my body they became irritated by my clothing. They began to ooze water-like matter. Then began an almost killing torture of itchiness. When I scratched I seemed to scalp the pimples and make them extremely sore. They festered and enlarged, then they opened and left sore spots. These spots became scabbed and sore beyond expression.

"I sent for a sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment which I received quicker than I expected. I was much relieved at the first application. I continued applying the Cuticura Remedies for two straight weeks, then I was completely cured, thanks to Cuticura Soap and Ointment." (Signed) John Jamieson, Mar. 6, 1912.

having taken their departure almost immediately.

How good of you, dear, to stay so long, Joan said to Dora with real gratitude, for Dora had been undoubtedly a good bit frightened and disturbed, and Joan had quite expected that following her usual practice, Dora would have fled instantly from the first hint of trouble and grief.

They talked a little, but on indifferent subjects, and it was only as Dora was adjusting her hat before the mirror preparatory to going, that she said without looking round:

Joan—Joan—what do you think that meant?

I do not know, answered Joan with a sigh and troubled look. Mother has always been a subject to such things, though usually at long intervals. What she says in them, she adds reluctantly, is often just the simple truth, though it always seems strange and mysterious, but sometimes she has just talked quite wildly and at random—as she did just now, Joan concluded with a visible effort.

It was very horrid to hear her, said Dora shuddering again, but I did like the way Mr. Thorold seemed to blaze out and defy everybody and everything.

Joan kissed her, and they went out into the hall together and on the way Dora suddenly exclaimed:

Oh, I forgot to tell you, Aunt Rachel has to go over to Ireland on some business with that stupid land of hers, and so I am staying at Lady Martin's till she comes back.

Oh, when are you going there? asked Joan.

To-night, answered Dora as she opened the front door, and as Joan was turning back to the drawing-room after waving her good-bye, she found Green standing behind her, apparently anxious to speak to her.

She looked at him with a smile, and it struck her that his face was worn and pale. She wondered if he were quite well.

You are looking quite pale, Mr. Green, she said with a touch of anxiety, for she had come to depend a good deal on his friendship, and she felt that of all those around her in this house he was the only one she could trust. Are you not feeling well?

Oh, I'm all right, he answered, though plainly gratified at the inquiry. Is it true, he went on abruptly, that you are going to marry this 'ere Mr. Thorold?

Why, yes, answered Joan with a blush and a laugh, yet wondering why he asked, since she was certain he knew all about it.

Then I suppose, he said in a very gruff, surly manner, as you don't want to have no more to do with the likes of me? Won't you wait my 'elp to run away no more, I suppose? Done with me for good, eh?

Why do you talk like that? Joan asked gently. What have I said or done that you should talk like that? You have been my friend when I had great need of a friend and I hope you will always be.

Ah, said he heavily, but that there Thorold—I hates 'im, you see.

You hate him? she repeated in surprise; but why?

Oh—because, he said slowly; and then he thinks me dirt—right enough, too.

Indeed he does nothing of the kind, cried Joan; and I shall tell him that you are my friend, and that you have been kind to us, she added with a proud confidence in the effect of anything she chose to say to her lover.

Will you, though? said Green in tones almost of incredulity. Lor' miss, 'ow good you are, he added with a certain huskiness in his tones. Then he asked abruptly: That lady who has just gone—is she a friend of yours?

A dear friend, answered Joan, detecting some meaning in the question.

Well, said Green, you tell 'er not to go to no Lady Martin's to-night—tomorrow if she likes, but not to-night.

Why? asked Joan.

I daresn't say no more, he replied, and added in a frightened whisper: Don't let on I said that—lor' that's Dave Durand's voice—I'll go—don't let on to 'im, miss, as I said anything to you.

He hurried away, and Joan entered to her mother's bed-side, full of uneasy doubts and fears, and she determined finally that the next time she saw Thorold she would speak to him plainly and fully of their position.

In the kitchen to which Green had hurried on leaving her, Durand was standing before the fire, plainly in an impatient and angry mood. He looked up at Green as he entered and asked:

Well—what have you found out?

Nothing, answered Green curtly, except as 'ow she wants to marry 'im.

I fancy, said Durand, that I had some idea of that before. When I brought you here, dear Mr. Green, I thought a man of your character and antecedents would be useful to us. Now I am inclined to regret our friends of the police force did not fall in with you. It seems to me you would have been as useful to us in retirement as you have been here.

Green made no answer to this, but sat down and thrust his hands deep in his pockets, and then stared full at Durand in a way that very intelligent person at once understood as a warning not to go too far.

Well, well, he said, perhaps I spoke too hastily, but you must make an allowance for a father's feeling, Mr. Green.

What's the sense of talking to me like that there? asked Green with an oath. And don't you call me Mr. Green, he added heavily; she calls me Mr. Green, just as if I was a gentleman, and no one else shant.

So you mind—Durand shrugged his shoulders impatiently. He thought Green must be in an unusually sulky mood and just anxious to find something to quarrel about; for he had no idea how proud Green was of the title "Mr."

Joan invariably gave him. It was to him a kind of token of respect, it meant to him all that honor might mean to another—to hear it used in mockery and scorn was intolerable to him. But of all this Durand had no idea.

I meant to let them marry, he remarked thoughtfully, and then to have bled Thorold through Joan—I would have been a very pretty opportunity for blackmail. But Billy Man says it would be too dangerous. He says Thorold already has suspicions, and, of course, Joan has, too, so that it would not be safe for him to have her. What do you think of Thorold, Green? Durand added abruptly.

Oh, I—as for him—stammered Green, but the expression on his face was sufficient, and Durand nodded with satisfaction.

Well, he said slowly, I may have to get you to help us to prevent him from marrying her.

Green did not speak, but his whole manner was eloquent of the disturbance in his mind. Before he had suddenly resigned himself to this marriage of Joan's with the man he disliked so heartily, though he knew well that it would mean his total and absolute separation from her. Worse still, it would mean that Joan would be told the dark secret of his past, the dark crime that lay upon his life, for Thorold knew that he was the Catford Street murderer.

He Knew

The professor of the class in English history was telling his students of the impressionable age, about the Elizabethan era, when, suddenly turning to one of the young men who seemed to be in a dream, he said:

And how old was Elizabeth, Mr. Case?

Eighteen last birthday, came the instant reply from Mr. Case, who was thinking of someone else's sister.

A Tombstone to a Trout

A tombstone erected many years ago to the memory of a trout may be seen at Blockley, Worcestershire, England, as proof positive that this is not a "fish story." The following text upon the stone tells the interesting story of the fish:

Memory of the old fish. Under the Old Fish do lie. Twenty years he lived and then he died. He was so tame, you understand, he would come and eat out of your hand. Died April 20, 1855. Aged 20 years.

Sorry He Spoke

Scientists state that seafaring people should always keep chocolate handy, remarked the pedantic youth. Chocolate contains many heat units and is valuable in time of emergency.

How nice, responded the girl. Better take a two-pound box when we go rowing this afternoon.

Another Complication

Horse racing has always been complex. You have to allow for weather, wind condition of the horse and condition of the track.

And now you have to look out for interference by suffragettes.

The boy is all right, said the doctor, but you want to talk to him and arouse his ambition. Promise him that you will take him somewhere when he recovers sufficiently to go out. Talk to him about playing hockey with the fellows. There are lots of ways in which you can interest him.

Then the doctor addressed the little chap, who was just recovering from the fever, saying:

Come, Billy, cheer up. Wouldn't you like to go out and slide on the ice with the other kids?

A faint smile stole over the boy's face, but that was all.

Wait a minute, doc—I'll rouse him, interrupted the kid's father. Look here, Bill, how would you like to go out and steal the milk bottles off the neighbors' porches, drink all the milk and then smash the bottles in the street so that the automobile tires will explode?

The child sat up and asked for his trousers.

When the doctor called to see the baby his mother informed him that the medicine left for the infant the day before was all gone.

Impossible, declared the surprised physician. I told you to give him a teaspoonful once an hour.

Yes, but John and mother and I and the nurse have each had to take a teaspoonful, too, in order to get baby to take it.

THE "BLUES"

A Lady Finds Help from Simple Food

Civilization brings blessings and also responsibilities.

The more highly organized we become the more need there is for regularity and natural simplicity in the food we eat.

The laws of body nutrition should be carefully obeyed, and the finer more highly developed brain and nervous system not hampered by a complicated, unwholesome diet.

A lady of high nervous tension says:

"For fifteen years I was a sufferer from dyspepsia. I confess that an improperly regulated diet was the chief cause of my suffering. Finally nothing that I ate seemed to agree with my stomach, and life, at times, did not seem worth living."

"I began to take a pessimistic view of everything and see life through dark blue glass, so to speak. My head became affected with a heavy creeping sensation and I feared paralysis."

"Palpitation of the heart caused me to fear that I might die suddenly. Two years ago, hearing Grape-Nuts so highly spoken of by some estimable friends of mine, I determined to try it."

The change in my condition was little less than miraculous. In a short time the palpitation had disappeared and the improvement has continued until at the present time I find myself in better health than I have ever enjoyed.

"My weight has increased 20 lbs in the last year and life looks bright and sunny to me as it did when I was a child."

Just What Did She Mean?

Miss Naberly—How long were you in attendance on Mrs. Smith before she died?

Young M.D.—Fourteen months.

Miss Naberly—Dear me! The old lady must have had wonderful vitality.

Mother—Why did you strike my child for nothing?

Teacher—It struck him because he wouldn't tell me where the River Thames was. He only stood and looked at me.

Mother—He was dumfounded at your ignorance, likely.

He Did

Tommy came out of a room in which his father was tacking down the carpet. He was crying lustily.

Why, Tommy, what's the matter, asked his mother.

Papa hit his finger with the hammer. Well, you needn't cry at a thing like that, said the mother. Why didn't you laugh?

I did, sobbed Tommy disconsolately.

The case concerned a will, and an Irishman was a witness.

Was the deceased, asked the lawyer, in the habit of talking to himself when alone?

I don't know was the reply.

Come, come, you don't know, and you pretend that you were intimately acquainted with him?

The fact is, said Pat drily, I never happened to be with him when he was alone.

He Lived There All Night

An anxious father got wind of the rumor that his son was leading rather a convivial life in town. But the son strenuously denied the charge in letters to his father. Still unsatisfied, the father made an unexpected visit to his son's lodgings, and giving the bell a manly pull, was met by a grim-faced landlady.

Does Mr. James Smith live here? asked the father.

He does, replied the landlady. Bring him right in.

Such Foolish Questions

Mother—You were a long time in the conservatory with Mr. Willing last night, my child. What was going on?

Daughter—Did you ever sit in the conservatory with papa before you married him?

Mother—I suppose I did.

Daughter—Well, mamma, it's the same old world.

Man may declare that he is the lord of creation, but all the same he fears his wife above everything else should he happen to reach home very late at night. Recently a certain husband arrived home much later than usual from the office. He took off his boots and stole into the bedroom, but vain precaution, his wife began to stir. Quickly the panic-stricken man went to the cradle of his first-born and began to rock it vigorously.

What are you doing there, Robert? queried his wife.

I've been sitting here for nearly two hours trying to get this baby to sleep he howled.

Why, Robert, I've got him here in bed with me, said the spouse.

And he never said another word all that night.

Moulding the Future Race

Human eugenics need not be and is not likely to be a cold-blooded selection of partners by some outside scientific authority. But it may be, and is very likely to be, a slowly growing conviction—first among the more intelligent members of the community and then by imitation and fashion among the less intelligent—that our children, the future race, the torch bearers of civilization for succeeding ages, are not the mere result of chance or Providence, but that in a very real sense it is within our power to mould them, that the salvation or damnation of many future generations lies in our teaspoonful of boracic acid in a half pint of hot water and letting it stand until the acid crystals are dissolved.

Can This Be?

Speaking of votes for women, said the first girl, I fear that Grace is becoming lukewarm.

How so? queried the lady of the second party, the proper place.

I understand she retires without pinning the badge to her nightgown.

Not for Him

An unexplained incident with a humorous side occurred at a railway station. A train was drawing out from the station when a man came running along the platform. Smith! Smith! Smith! he shouted.

In a car at the rear of the train sat a passenger, who, hearing the cry, thrust his head out of the window. Immediately the runner on the platform struck him a smart blow across the cheek.

Every moment the wheels were revolving more swiftly, and before the insulted passenger could call an official the train was clear of the station. He went at once to the conductor's quarters.

What kind of an outrage is this? he demanded. Here am I, an innocent passenger, sitting quietly just as the train pulls out of the station. Suddenly a man runs down the platform shrieking Smith! Smith! I look out of the window, and he reaches up and almost knocks my head off! Now, I want to—

Pardon me, interrupted the conductor. Is your name Smith?

No it isn't and that is just what makes—

Well, then, sir, what did you look out of the window for? There was not anybody calling you, was there?

Worms in children work havoc. These pests attack the tender lining of the intestines and if left to pursue their ravages undisturbed, will ultimately perforate the wall, because these worms are of the hook variety that cling to and feed upon interior surfaces. Miller's Worm Powders will not only exterminate these worms of whatever variety, but will serve to repair the injury they have done.

Horse Always Lost

The passenger inside the cab suddenly put his head out of the window and exclaimed to the driver: Ge. on, man; get on. Wake up your nag.

Shure, sor. I 'avent the heart to bate 'im.

What's the matter with him. Is he sick?

No, sor, 'e's not sick, but it's unlucky he is, sir, unlucky. You see, sor, every morning afore I put 'im in the cab, I tosses 'im whether 'e'll 'ave a feed of oats or I'll have a drink of whisky, an' the poor baste has lost five mornings running.

Difficult to Catch

An Englishman who was appointed to an important post in China got married soon after. Amongst the recipients of the usual little cardboard boxes containing a piece of wedding cake was a Chinese merchant with whom the bridegroom had an outstanding account for goods supplied. After the honeymoon one of the first persons the newly-wedded husband met was his Celestial creditor.

And how did you like the cake? said the Englishman, laughingly, after the usual congratulations.

Ah, ha! returned the Chinaman, with a cunning leer, me no such a big fool to eat him, sah. Mo put cake in fire. Burn him up. He! he.

Oh, that's too bad! said the Englishman; very much hurt. You might have tasted it at least, out of compliment to my wife, and myself. Why didn't you?

Me too clus, sah, said the Celestial, with the same cunning smile. You owe me monce, sah! sendee poison cake; I eat him; I die; you no payee up. Houpia. He! he! he! I know you English!

I Should Worry

Mrs. Smith was repeatedly reminding her husband that she owned the silver, that she owned the furniture, that the piano was her own private property, and so on, until poor Smith began to wonder what she'd claim next.

The other night Mrs. S. woke in alarm. Strange sounds were heard in the lower parts of the house, and quickly rousing her husband, she cried:

John, John! Get up! There are burglars in the house!

Eh? inquired Mr. Smith, rubbing his eyes.

Burglars downstairs, repeated Mrs. S.

Burglars? said Smith, as he turned over. Well, I should worry. I don't own anything.

Offer to recruit who has missed every shot—Good heavens, man, where are your shots going?

Recruit (nervously)—I don't know, sir; they left here all right.

Couldn't be Done

Two Irishmen were discussing the various books they had read.

Have you read "The Eternal City"?

I have.

Have you read Marie Corelli's works?

I have that.

Have you read "Looking Backward"?

How on airth could I do that?

Going fishing is good exercise for the imagination.

A girl who paints well may be homely, but it is her own fault if she is.

Boaster—I am a self-made man, I am.

Boaster—Well there's one thing you needn't worry about.

According to Passport

An amusing story—which shows the value of the passport system—comes from Russia. Prince Metcherky, who is a journalist by profession, was commissioned by the Czar to investigate certain agrarian troubles. The Prince went to Roumania, and there obtained one of the permits necessary for taking livestock across the frontier.

Then he went to a Russian frontier post and presented the document to the official as his warrant to pass. The official could read but little in Russian and knew no Roumanian, but the old document, with the coat of arms and seal, greatly impressed him, and he cheerily put the Russian official stamp on it.

His investigations ended, the Prince went back to Moscow, and at the first opportunity presented the passport to the governor, saying:

"With this document I entered Roumania, and traveled about for five months yet you must admit that the description of me is scarcely correct or flattering."

The amazed governor read that the Prince was one black, stout, full grown, with one ear partly torn away.

Circumstances, Etc.

Mrs. Brown—Is this hotel on the European plan?

Mr. Brown (in preoccupied tones from behind his paper)—Yes, my dear.

Mrs. B.—I'm not feeling hungry this morning. I think I'll merely take some coffee and rolls.

Mr. B. (laying aside paper)—What were you asking me, my dear? On the European plan? No, it is not.

Mrs. B. (to waiter)—You may bring me an omelet, some shad, mushrooms, rolls, and coffee, and afterward some griddle cakes and syrup.

Her Misapprehension

He (desperately)—Tell me the truth. Is it my poverty that stands between us?

She (sadly)—Yes.

He (with a ray of hope)—I admit that I am poor, and so, unfortunately, is my father; but I have an aged uncle who is very rich and a bachelor. He is an invalid, and cannot long survive. She (delightedly)—How kind and thoughtful you are! Will you introduce him to me?

I am sending you some manuscript, wrote the budding authoress. I also inclose a letter of introduction from the vicar, one from my teacher, and a paragraph from our local paper, telling of my adoption of a literary career. Is there anything else I might send you to interest you in my writings?

Dear Madam, wrote the perspiring editor in reply, you need send me but one thing—a good short story.

Not Hurt Socially

I wouldn't associate with him. I understand he's served a term in prison.

That's true, but it was for an offense involving a million dollars or more; nothing really disgraceful, you know.

The Character of His Excellence

I tell you, said one man to another as they emerged from the dimly-lighted corridor of a concert hall, I envy that fellow who was singing.

Envy him? echoed the other. Well, if I were going to envy a singer I'd select somebody with a better voice. His was about the poorest I ever heard.

It's not his voice I envy, man, was the reply. It's his tremendous courage.

Knew Him Well

A certain cantankerous old gentleman not long ago advertised for a coachman, who was required, among other qualifications, to possess an intimate acquaintance with the neighborhood; but, to his great surprise, he received not a single application for the vacant post.

I cannot understand it at all, he said, as during a chat one day with an old hostler at the local livery stables he had mentioned the fact.

Let me see, said the latter, as a gleam of intelligence flitted across his face, ye had advertised, I believe, for one as must be well acquainted with the neighborhood, didn't ye?

I did, replied the old gentleman, shortly. I want some one who knows his way about.

Ah, that explains it, was the answer.

Ye see, they who know the neighborhood well know ye, too.

Epicurean Sense

Sir Leopold McClintock, the arctic explorer, was once giving an account of his experiences amid the ice fields of the North. We certainly would have traveled much farther, he explained, had not our dogs given out at a critical time. But, exclaimed the lady, who had been listening very intently, I thought the Eskimo dogs were perfectly tireless creatures. Sir Leopold's face wore a whimsically gloomy expression as he replied: I—er—speak in a culinary sense, miss.

The Morning's Surprise

Simoon Easy, after living sixty years on a farm, finds his quarters on shipboard somewhat cramped. He obviates the lack of space, however, by stowing his trousers and shoes into a round cupboard in the side of the vessel on going to bed.

Seven a.m. Startling disclosures. Steward, last night I put my clothes in that cubby-hole, an' they ain't there now.

That ain't a clothes press; that's a port-hole, sir.

Mlle. Gaby Deslys, the French dancer, is an exceedingly slender young person, and for purposes of better demonstrating her art she wears, when on the stage, exceedingly slender clothes. A person from the interior who had seen the lady, came forth to tell about her.

What does she look like? asked a friend.

Well, said the visitor, if she'd shut one eye she'd look like a needle.

Real Worry

Chief of Detectives—Now, give us a description of your missing cashier. How tall was he?

Business Man—I don't know how tall he was. What worries me is that he was $12,000 short.

To Men Who Live Inactive Lives.

Exercise in the open air is the best tonic for the stomach and system generally; but there are those who are compelled to follow sedentary occupations and the inactivity tends to restrict the healthy action of the digestive organs and sickness follows. Parnelee's Vegetable Pills regulate the stomach and liver and restore healthy action. It is wise to have a packet of the pills always on hand.

Willie's Threat

Willie was a little fellow of eight, who with his mother, stayed at the house of an aunt without having made provision to sleep. There being no small boys in his aunt's family, Willie was put to bed in one of his little cousins in Deborah's nightgowns. He was very indignant at having to wear anything with so many frills and so much lace round the neck and on the sleeves.

I won't stand it, mother, he protested loudly on the second night. I won't wear anything so girly. I'll run away, you see if I don't, before I'll put that thing on again. Why, rather than wear that—that horrid nightgown—I'll sleep raw!

Requisite Knowledge

As a country physician was driving through a village he saw a man amusing a crowd with the antics of his trick dog. The doctor pulled up and said:

My dear man, how do you manage to train your dog like that? I can't teach mine a single trick.

The man looked up with a simple rustic look, and replied:

Well, you see, it's this way: you have to know mo'n the dog or you can't learn him nothin'.

Marvellous

I have been taking some moving pictures of life on your farm, said the photographer to an agriculturist.

Did you catch my laborers in motion? asked the farmer.

I think so.

Ah, well, science is a wonderful thing!

Hospitality

And did you enjoy your African trip, major? How did you like the savages?

Oh, they were extremely kind-hearted! They wanted to keep me there for dinner!

Must Chew the Pill

Oh, yes, that's easy. Just—I mean without letting her marry him?

Not that I know of.

It Works Both Ways

The Woman—Here's a wonderful thing. I have just been reading of a man who reached the age of forty without learning how to read or write. He met a woman, and for her sake he made a scholar of himself in two years.

The Man—That's nothing! I know a man who was a profound scholar at her side; he made a fool of himself in two days!

My good man, they need laborers badly in the next town. Thanks for the warning, boss. I'll make a detour.

HAD A STROKE OF PARALYSIS

And Found a Cure in Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

It is always better to prevent serious diseases of the nerves. There are many warnings, such as sleeplessness, irritability, headaches and nervous indigestion.

Prostration, paralysis and locomotor ataxia only come when the nervous system is greatly exhausted. Even though your ailment may not yet be very serious, there is a great satisfaction in knowing that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will cure paralysis in its earlier stages.

Mrs. R. Bright, 215 Booth Avenue, Toronto, writes: "Two years ago my husband had a stroke which left him in a weak, nervous condition. He started taking Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and Kidney-Liver Pills, and we saw the good results almost immediately. They have made a new man of my husband and we cannot speak too highly of them."

Wrong all the Time

A political speaker was attacking the Government with more venom than reason. A man at the back of the hall at last cried out: You're wrong, sir! A little nettled, the orator continued without heeding.

Presently, in answer to another strong assertion, came again: You're wrong sir! The speaker looked angry, but continued on the war path.

You're wrong, sir, again rang out. Angriest of all, the orator cried: Look here, I could tell this man something about this Government which would make his hair stand on end!

You're wrong again, sir, came exultantly from the critic as he stood up and removed his hat. His head was as bald as an egg.

Rejected Cabinets

Irate Woman—The photographs you took of myself and husband are not at all satisfactory and I refuse to accept them.

Photographer—What's wrong with them?

Irate Woman—What's wrong? Why, my husband looks like a baboon.

Photographer—Well, that's no fault of mine, madam. You should have thought of that before you had him taken.

Doctor—From now you may let your husband have a glass of beer every day. You understand?

Wife—Yes, doctor—just one glass a day.

Doctor (a week later)—Now, I hope you have kept strictly to that one glass per day that I allowed your husband to take?

Wife—Most decidedly, doctor—only he is four weeks in advance with his allowance.

The Fan

He said the umpire was a thief, and heaped abuse upon his name. What is the cause of all this grief? His home team lost a game.

Today he says the 'ump' is great—the very best beneath the sun. Why such a sudden change of state? To-day his home team won!

Corroboration

You look like a fool! thundered the disgusted man to his son just home from Oxford; more and more like a conceited, hare-brained, helpless fool every year!

Just then an acquaintance of the old gentleman entered the office and saw the youth.

Hello, Charlie! Back, eh? he exclaimed genially. You're getting to look more and more like your father every year!

Yes, said Charlie; that's what the governor's just been telling me.

Two of a Kind

Suitor—I have no bad habits. I don't smoke or drink.

Father—Neither has my daughter. She doesn't play or sing.

True Christians

A traveller who believed himself to be the sole survivor of a shipwreck on a cannibal isle, lived for three days in terror of his life. Driven out by hunger, he discovered a thin wisp of smoke rising from a clump of bushes inland, and crawled carefully to study the type of savages about it. Just as he reached the clump he heard a voice say: Why in hell did you play that card? He dropped on his knees and devoutly raising his hands, cried: Thank God, they are Christians!

Colored Epigram

A colored philosopher is reported to have said: Life, my brethren, am mos'ly made up of prayin' for rain, and then wishin' it would clear off.

Ultimatum

My dear, I see you are having some clothes made for your poodle. Yes, it is the latest fad.

Well, I serve notice right here that I don't put on any dog down the back.

A Makeshift

Look here, Mose; I thought you were going to be baptized into the Baptist Church?

Yaas, sah, I was. But I's bein' sprinkled into de 'Piscopal till de summer comes.

A Hint

Mr. Spriggins (genially)—My dear, a Boston man was shot at by a burglar and his life was saved by a button which the bullet struck.

Mrs. Spriggins—Well, what of it? Mr. Spriggins—Nothing, only the button must have been on.

Those wicked neighbors of ours were in hard luck, said Japhet.

It serves them right, replied Ham. They stood around waiting for a ship subsidy instead of going ahead and doing business as we did.

George's Error

On a wet, cold, February day, George Farmer stood coughing before a chemist's window.

His eye rested on a placard, which said:

No more Coughs.
No more colds.
25c. per bottle.

George entered the shop. The chemist said he could guarantee the anti-cold remedy, and the young man bought a bottle.

Two days later he returned again through mire and sleet.

I have drunk the mixture, he gasped, and it seems to have plugged up my throat. I can hardly breathe!

The chemist started.

You drank it? he cried. Why, man, it's an indiarubber solution to put on the soles of your shoes.

Children, said the minister, addressing the Sunday school, I want to talk to you a few moments about one of the most important organs in the world. What is it that throbs away, away, never stopping, never ceasing, whether you wake or sleep, night and day, week in and week out, without any violation on your part, hidden away as it were in the depths, unseen by you, throbbing, throbbing, rhythmically all your life long?

And during the pause of oratorical effect came a small voice: The Gas meter.

One day an Irishman met an Englishman and accosted him thus: Do you know in what month of the year my wife talks the least?

Well, I suppose when she catches cold and loses her voice, said the Englishman.

Not at all. It is in February, said Paddy.

Why is that? asked the Englishman. Because February has the fewest days.

No Occasion

Photographer—Go away, boy! I want to take a photograph of this lady!

Boy—But why?

Risky

Builder's Man—Hi, guv'nor, that new row of 'ouses in Maple Grove are all fallen down like a pack of cards.

Builder—Idiot! Didn't I tell you not to take the scaffolding down till you'd put up the wall-papers?

Waiting at the Church

A young man lived at some distance from his bride-elect. In the eventful day he set off for the station in good time, but, being delayed by friends, he missed his train. Then he thought himself of a telegram.

Don't marry till I come—William! was the message he wired.

The teacher had been telling the class about the rhinoceros family.

Now, name some things, said she, that are very dangerous to get near to and that have horns.

Major-capt. replied little Jennie Jones, promptly.

Writer's Cramp

Pa, what is writer's cramp?

It's being cramped for money, my son. All writers suffer from it.

Critic (as the composer played his last piece)—Very fine indeed. But what is that passage which makes the cold chills run down the back?

Composer—That is where the wanderer has the hotel bill brought to him.

The Usual Kind

Have you any alarm clocks? Inquired the customer.

Yes, ma'am, said the man behind the counter. About what price do you wish to pay for one?

The price is no object if I can get the kind I am after. What I want is one that will arouse the girl without waking the whole family.

I don't know of any such alarm clock as that, ma'am, said the man. We keep just the ordinary kind—the kind that will wake the whole family without disturbing the girl.

Spoiling the Visit

The Amiable Woman—Did you enjoy your visit to Stratford-on-Avon?

The American Visitor—It was perfectly horrid, that's just what it was! Why, Shakespeare's tomb was guarded so closely that I didn't get an opportunity to chip off a single souvenir, or even to write my name on it!

Their Occupati no

Stranger (at Oxford Station)—What kind of a town is this?

Native—A university town.

Stranger—Um. What do the people who don't attend the university do?

Native—They do the students.

A Laugh Escape

A teacher in a suburban school, hearing a smothered laugh, inquired who dared to be so rude.

Please sir, it was me, answered a loud voice, but I did not mean it.

Did not mean it? queried the now angry teacher.

No, sir. I laughed up my sleeve, but I did not know there was a hole in my elbow.

In 1911 in the United States 94,203 persons died of tuberculosis.

Epsom Salts

A distinguished foreigner visiting Epsom Downs in Thackeray's company noticed many men dressed as sailors who were not, to native and experienced eyes, the real article.

Ah, said the visitor, these are, I suppose, what you call your British tars?

Oh, no, replied Thackeray. Only Epsom salts.

GOOD BLOOD THE SECRET OF HEALTH

To be Healthy You Must Keep the Blood Rich, Red and Pure

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are useful in any disease caused by thin or impure blood, and the list of such diseases is astonishingly large. Anaemia literally means a condition in which the blood is thin and watery. In rheumatism the blood becomes thin more rapidly than in any other disease.

After an attack of a gripe or acute fever the blood is always thin and impure, and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the tonic to use during convalescence. When the blood is poor and thin the stomach suffers. The food ferments, gas and certain acids form and the trouble is pronounced indigestion or dyspepsia. The nerves receive from the blood all of their nourishment to keep up their energy and repair waste or damage. Some forms of paralysis are caused by thin blood.

The progress of locomotor ataxia is stopped in many cases when the blood is made pure, rich and red. This is only a partial list of the troubles having their origin in impure, watery blood, and all can be cured by supplying the blood with its missing constituents.

This is exactly what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills do. Their chief mission is to make rich, red blood, and this good blood reaches every organ and every nerve in the human body, thus driving out disease and bringing renewed health and strength to thousands of weak, despondent people.

Ask your neighbors. There is not an inhabited corner in Canada where Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have not restored some sufferer, and all over this country there are grateful people who do not hesitate to say they owe health—in some cases life itself—to this great medicine. If you are ill, begin to cure yourself to-day by using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Sold by all dealers in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Co., Brockville, Ont.

The man who spends his leisure hours improving his mind is making an investment that is bound to bring big returns.

Several men have been added to the construction gang on the U. F. A. elevator, and work is being pushed forward with all dispatch, so that it probably will be completed within a fortnight.

Cheer up! It cannot last forever! Money will reappear as suddenly and mysteriously as it disappeared. Don't be alarmed. Be calm. Keep cool. Tell the man in the white jacket to mix you up a Scotch high ball and look pleasant.

Nature is not an inexhaustible storehouse which may be looted with impunity by every freebooter who calls himself a farmer. There will be a day of reckoning. Any system of agriculture that doesn't conserve the fertility of the soil on which agriculture depends is all the time drawing on the bank of nature, and in the end the drafts will be dishonored.

CHINA MAY ATTRACT OUR WESTERN FLOUR

Another Reason Why Our Wheat
Should be Milled in Canadian Mills

Men who have spent from ten to twenty-five years in the Orient are now saying that the long-awaited awakening of China is at last at hand. The change that has taken place in the country and people since the revolution is regarded as the greatest that has ever occurred in any nation during so brief a period. Wages are increasing, and if the projected foreign loans go through, there will be further improvement in this respect. The money will be used largely in the construction of railways, and a higher standard of living will follow.

This will mean a heavy increase in the Chinese consumption of flour, much of which must be supplied by Western Canada. The grain will be ground in this country and the by-products fed to cattle here, there being comparatively little live stock in the Orient. It looks as if the development of Asiatic markets and the opening of the Panama Canal must immensely encourage agricultural and industrial expansion in the Western Canadian Provinces and furnish plenty of traffic for our railways, new and old, which link up the plains via the mountains with Vancouver, Prince Rupert and other Pacific Coast ports.

MILLIONS OF CASH COMING TO CANADA

The Canadian Pacific Railway is Bringing in $80,000,000 in Eight Months

The Monetary Times draws attention to the interesting fact that within the next eight months the Canadian Pacific Railway can bring no less than $80,000,000 of new capital from abroad for use in this country. This sum is that portion of the amount realized on the company's recent stock issue, which will be available for transfer to Canada. It will be poured into the company's coffers in London in four instalments, which are due this month and in June, August and October. This means that this one railway may bring $15,000,000 across the Atlantic every two months until the autumn.

In Western Accounts
On reaching Canada these funds will figure in the company's accounts at Montreal, Winnipeg, Calgary and Vancouver, and from these temporary resting places be scattered far and wide over the country. "Much of the money will go in the ordinary course to settle the claims of the contractors who are engaged on the company's works." In this way these contractors' obligations to their own banks will be lessened, the money will be widely distributed in the settlement of commercial accounts, and the tendency will be to ease the financial situation at least to a moderate extent.

Perhaps never before has a single stock market transaction rendered such a huge sum of money available for this country, and it is remarked that the arrival of such a large amount in a period of stringency might work harm by causing merchants and speculators to abandon their present cautious and conservative attitude which is the salvation of the situation. What is required for a complete cure is a continuation for some time yet of the present abstention from speculation and from excessive borrowing. Bankers are advising men to go slowly and carefully, to keep their lines of credit well within control, and to postpone unnecessary extensions of plant or of business activity.

No Depression
Commercial payments may be slow for the time being and real estate values may be weaker in the West, but our factories are overlaid with orders and no signs of depression are described. If speculation is checked and if business men and manufacturers are postponing new extensions it is because of a world-wide condition—a temporary shortage of money to finance an unprecedented universal prosperity together with a costly war and rapidly growing European armaments. Once Canadian corporations and municipalities can again draw money freely from London as the Canadian Pacific Railway has done monetary conditions will become easy again here and elsewhere. And the money must be forthcoming to house and provide for the immigrants who are arriving this year in larger numbers than ever. Tens of thousands of them are going on the land and the larger proportion the better.

FREE TRADE WAGES

Hours Are Cruelly Long and the Pay
Is Miserable

J. F. W. the regular English correspondent of the Toronto Globe, has recently had a little to say about the life of working people in free trade Britain. We quote:

"The London bakers, have scored in a dispute with the employers over the conditions—hours and wages—of work. The conditions are admittedly disgraceful; the work is done in many cases in dirty, underground bakeries, the hours are cruelly long, sometimes a hundred a week, and the pay is miserable 2s or 25s a week. The men have now got 30s a week and a fifty-four-hour week in shops, with sixty hours in factories, where the work is lighter. They are satisfied for the time being, but their next agitation will be for the abolition of night-work and for the inclusion of the baking industry in the Trade Boards act. This is an act that was passed by the present Government in 1909 as an experiment in the prevention of sweating in a few trades, where sweating was notorious."

Just Being Discovered

Writing in Industrial Canada Mr. Norman Lambert says: "Sufficient has been shown now to prove that the prairie provinces, besides admitting of cultivation in places which at one time were regarded as indomitable, have revealed great opportunities to the manufacturer. The development of the past two years shows also that the West is just being discovered, and that discovery will not be complete until more factories, and more mixed farms, are established, making the prairie territory the self-supporting country it should be."

GET YOUR CANADIAN HOME FROM THE CANADIAN PACIFIC

Wonderfully fertile land is offered for sale by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company at prices ranging from $11 to $30 per acre. There is no better agricultural land than this virgin Canadian soil. It is adapted to all forms of agriculture, including grain growing, stock raising, dairying, poultry culture, vegetable growing, and general mixed farming. The lands are convenient to railways and markets, and are located in a country of low taxation and delightful climate.

TWENTY YEARS TO PAY

Under the Company's new policy no land is sold to speculators, but only to those who will occupy and improve it. The terms of sale are now one-twentieth cash and the balance spread over twenty years, with interest at six per cent per annum.

ASSISTANCE TO FARMERS

Under certain conditions the Company will advance a loan of $2000 to new settlers to be used in erecting a house and barn, fencing the land and sinking a well. This loan is repayable on the same terms as the purchase price.

Chug, chug! Br-r-r, Br-r! Honk, Honk! Zip, zip!

The pedestrian paused at the intersection of two busy thoroughfares. He saw a car making at him from one side, a motor-cycle on the other, a motor-lorry in the rear, and a taxicab threatened him waistcoat buttons.

Zingling! He looked up, and saw a runaway aeroplane in rapid descent. There was but one chance. He was standing on a manhole-cover. Quickly seizing it he lifted the lid and jumped into the hole, but alas! only to be run over by a trolley train.

The Coming Maude

Maude Muller, one day, eating fudge. Looked up and saw the county judge.

Maude was a pretty girl, all right—His honor fell in love at sight.

And, when about a month had fled, Maude promised that the judge should wed.

Then o'er the judge's pathway came A wealthy, proud and stately dame.

An ardent suffragette was Maude, Chairwoman of the county board.

I'll get square, Maude said without fail So told the party her sad tale.

Judge had elected been in fall; In spring they voted his recall.

The haughty dame refused to wed, You are no longer judge, she said.

This lesson sad he learned, you bet; Don't monkey with a suffragette!

In Casual Water
Mr. Brown took a day off, and went down into the country to fish. He found a promising pond, and fished for three hours without getting a single bite.

A little farmer boy watched him most of the time. Finally, when Brown's patience was exhausted, he said querulously to the boy: Are there any fish in this pond at all?

If there are any, the boy answered, they must be awful small, sir; for there wasn't any water at all here until it rained yesterday.

Callahan—Oh, I want to get a book to put 'th' photographs av all of me relatives in. Oh, think this wan will do.

Shopman—But that isn't a family album, sir; that is a scrap-book.

Callahan—Oh, that's all right, young man; all av me relatives were scrap-pers.

The Englishman had been boasting about the way they did things across the pond.

Then the New Englander thought he'd have a whack.

Talking about justices being meted out quickly, he said, only yesterday an airman over here fell out of his aeroplane, and he was tried and sentenced to six months' jail before he hit the ground.

You don't say so! drawled the Englishman. What was the charge?

Vagrancy, replied the Yankee. He had no visible means of support.

Broad—By the way, old man, do you remember borrowing ten shillings from me six months ago?

Short—Yes.

Broad—But you said you only wanted it for a short time.

Short—And I told the truth. I didn't keep it twenty minutes.

Excitement is oftentimes the cause of queer remarks as well as the cause of strange telegrams.

A man who had been one of the passengers on a vessel which had been widely circulated as lost was rescued almost by a miracle. On arriving at a place from which he could send a telegram he forwarded the following despatch to his partner:

I am saved. Try to break it gently to my wife.

Intelligent Chollie
Chollie had decided to give up the sporting life and settle down to farming, and was now buying a cow.

Now, here's a cow, said the agent, that I can highly recommend to you. She has won several prizes at our county fair, and—

Really? said Chollie, looking the animal over admiringly. Er—trotting or steeplechase?

Snubbed
Several medical men and a newspaper man were visiting an insane asylum. The employee who was showing them about pointed out a man who considered himself the Lord.

The newspaper man, true to his instincts, seeking to have an interview asked the insane one whether he really made the earth in seven days.

The latter gave him a look of utter contempt, and said as he passed on: I am not in the mood to talk shop!

Timely Warning
You'd better eat it slow, said Willie to the clergyman who was dining with the family. Mamma never gives more'n one piece of pie.

Retort That Bit
I'm sorry I ever married you! shrieked the bride, on the occasion of their first quarrel.

You ought to be! retorted the groom really angry and bitter for the first time. You beat some nice girl out of a good husband!

What makes you carry that horrible shriek machine for an automobile signal?

For humane reasons, replied Mr. Chuggins. If I can paralyze a person with fear, he will keep still and I can run to one side of him.

An enthusiastic fisherman was telling some friends about a proposed fishing trip to a lake in Colorado he had in contemplation.

Are there any trout out there? asked one friend.

Thousands of 'em.

Will they bite easily?

Will they? Why, they are absolutely vicious. A man has to hide behind a tree to bait a hook.

AN UNUSUAL ACTIVITY

President of Eddy Company Takes Cheerful View of Business Situation

Mr. W. H. Rowley, president of the E. B. Eddy Company, with twenty-five or more branches in Canada, with resident agents in every large city from Halifax to Victoria, and with sixteen or eighteen thousand customers and correspondents in this country, takes a very cheerful view of the business situation.

Mr. Rowley told The World yesterday that their business throughout Canada was better during the first half of 1913 than for the same period of 1912, that is, sales were greater, although profits are less. Larger sales show increased consumption; smaller profits indicate greater cost of material, higher wages and cut prices by senseless rivalry.

The chief channel of the distribution of Eddy's wares is through the wholesale grocery and jobbing trades. Until a few weeks ago, buying was done with great caution and only for immediate needs; now, however, there is less feeling of anxiety than earlier in the year, and since the middle of June business is flowing more freely and goods are more in demand.

Correspondence from every city in Canada shows that business in all lines is becoming stronger and healthier. The hand to mouth buying of a few weeks ago is succeeded by usual midsummer activity because the wholesaler's stocks are low, the retailer's shelves were bare, but now there is a better, surer and more easy feeling among buyers; and the necessities of life, such as matches, buckets, tubs, paper bags and paper of all kinds are in good demand for daily use.

Mr. Rowley said: "The majority of the orders received at the works at Hull for a month past are marked 'rush,' 'hurry,' 's.a.p.' while nearly every order calls for quick delivery, and that while the demand for goods, the lack of supplies and material, high wages and cost of making will keep the price firmer, I expect to see higher lists on many lines and an end put to cut prices, although our lists do not vary very much, taking one year with another.—The Toronto World."

A Bouquet
A poetical old shopkeeper was always doing kind things and saying lovely ones. One spring he was having his shop repainted. He told the painter to leave a certain corner untouched for the time being; he explained that the young people, at that season did all their courting there and he didn't want them to get smuged.

But, objected the painter, these young folks would be fools not to know the smell of fresh paint.

Young fellow, said the old shopkeeper, you have never had a girl, that's plain. If you had, you'd know that when folks are in love, everything—wet paint included—smells like violets and roses.

One for Mathematician
A noted mathematician, considered by many a wonder, stopped at a hotel in a small town in the English provinces. There were a number of travellers staying there and there was also a doctoring of medical men. One of the doctors thought it would be a joke to tell the mathematician that some of the M.D.'s had decided to kidnap him and take out his brains to learn how it was he was so good in mathematics. He was then asked by them what he was going to do about it. He replied: Why, I shall simply go on without brains just as you doctors are doing.

Nothing Extraordinary
An American tourist in England was out sightseeing. They took him aboard the old battleship Victory, Nelson's flagship. An English sailor escorted the American over the vessel, and coming to a raised brass tablet on the deck he said, as he reverently removed his hat:

Here, sir, is the spot where Lord Nelson fell.

Oh, is it? replied the American blandly. Well, that is not surprising. I nearly tripped over the darned thing myself.

Unwarranted Pride
Professor (coming from his club, holding up his umbrella to his wife)—You see, I haven't forgotten my umbrella.

Mrs. Professor—But my dear, you didn't take your umbrella with you; you left it at home.

Lady Visitor—That new girl of yours seems very nice and quiet.

Mistress—Yes, she's very quiet. She doesn't even disturb the dust when she is cleaning the room.

One Exception
Grandfather (to small boy who is returning to school)—Now, my boy, I hope we shall have a better report of you next term. The last wasn't at all satisfactory—last in your exams—last in the term marks—in fact, last in everything.

Indignant Small Boy—Not last in everything, grandfather; I was top in age.

The Boy—What does arbitration mean?

Teacher—It means that when two powers of equal strength get hold of a smaller country they agree to divide it equally.

Distressed Damsel—O, sir, catch that man! He wanted to kiss me!

Pensive Pedestrian—That's all right. There'll be another one along in a minute.

The Cautious Scot

A Scotchman went to a solicitor, laid before him a question and asked him if he could undertake the case, reports the Birmingham Weekly Post. Certainly, replied the solicitor. I will readily undertake the case. We are sure to win.

So ye really think it's a good case? Most decidedly, my dear sir. I am prepared to guarantee that you will secure a favorable verdict.

Ah, well, I'm much obliged to ye, but I dinna think I'll go tae law this time, for ye see the case I've laid before ye is my opponent's.

The Malden's Prayer
The Lord helps him who helps himself. Snatching another kiss, he cried, A footfall sounded on the stair, The Lord help you! the maiden sighed.

An Exception
So they married in haste. Then I suppose, following out the proverb they repeated at leisure.

No; they repeated in haste, also.

Not Guilty
Mistress—Bridget, whatever becomes of the cutlery? I am continually missing some. Really, I suspect the dustmen as they come through the scullery.

Cook—Faith, marm, ye're wrong there entirely. They're too honest at all. Why, they brought back thray knives last week that they'd found in the dustbin!

Case for a Good Lawyer
We are you so sad? an acquaintance asked a young man whose aunt had just died. You never appeared to care much for the poor lady.

I didn't said the youth dolefully; but I was the means of keeping her in a lunatic asylum during the last five years of her life. She has left me all her money, and now I have got to prove that she was of sound mind.

Hours, I should say, Mr. Slowman retorted crossly.

Willie said the teacher, is there any difference between the words sufficient and enough?

Yes, ma'am, replied Willie. Sufficient is when mama thinks I have eaten enough pie, and enough is when I think I have eaten sufficient.

Some adjectives, said the teacher, are made from nouns, such as dangerous, meaning full of danger; and hazardous, full of hazard. Can any boy give me another example?

Yes, sir; replied the fat pie at the end of the form; plous, full of pie.

INFANTS SAVED
FROM TORTURE

Thirty Thousand Daily
Saved From Damnation
—Good Work Goes On.

London —A Bible Students Convention has been in progress here several days in the London Tabernacle, Lancaster Gate, W. Pastor Russell delivered two addresses to-day. We report one of them, from the text "Else were your children unholy, but now are they holy."—1 Corinthians 7:14.

The Pastor declared that his text, which differentiated between holy and not holy infants, was probably the basis for much of the confusion which has prevailed in all denominations on the subject of infant salvation and infant damnation. Before discussing his text, he wished to call the attention of his hearers to the fact that about two months ago the Presbyterian General Assembly in the United States had taken a very advanced theological step on this subject. According to telegraphic despatches, it has altered the Presbyterian Confession of Faith so as to save the non-elect infants as well as the elect ones.

The thought that God had arranged a Plan by which some infants would go to Heaven at death, and other infants would go to eternal torture, has for centuries greatly troubled the minds of all Christian people—Catholic and Protestant. Some said that the elect infants would be saved and the non-elect infants would be tortured. Others had it that any infant by baptism would be brought into the Church and be saved, while infants not thus baptized or sprinkled would go to eternal torture. Others had it that none could be saved without regeneration, and these were perplexed to know how infants could be said to be regenerated. Therefore how could they hope that any infants would be saved? The hearts and the heads of all good people have suffered terribly for many centuries because of these confused ideas.

It is gratifying, the Pastor declared, to see that with the Presbyterians, at least, love and sympathy have triumphed; and that, so far as they are concerned, thirty thousand infants daily go to Heaven, instead of going to Hell. Certainly this is a missionary project of no mean proportions! At this rate they do not doubt believe that Heaven will soon begin to have reasonable proportions, as compared with Hell. We regret that the brethren did not take any measures looking toward the relief of the non-elect infants of the past who now must number thousands of millions. It is worthy of consideration, and we trust will have their attention.

And since the matter is so easily adjusted, why would it not be the proper thing for all Christian denominations to follow the lead and example of the Presbyterians? We fear that not many of the other denominations will join the Presbyterians in their generous work of helping the infants. They might reason that if all infants dying in infancy are saved, it might be the safest thing that parents could do for their children to insure their eternal salvation by killing them in infancy. Then baby incubators and various devices—medicines, foods, etc.—intended for the preservation of infants' lives might come to be considered detrimental to the eternal interests of the children!

But how foolish all such theories seem! How beautiful by contrast is the simple teaching of the Bible, that the salvation for all—old and young of heathen lands as well as of Christian lands is through the resurrection power of Messiah's Kingdom—through its enlightening and uplifting, or resurrecting influences! Why should we longer trouble with the errors of the Dark Ages when God's Message, the Bible, is now opening up for His people, shining as an electric lamp, in contrast with the tallow-candle darkness of the creeds?

Pastor Russell declared that he felt great sympathy for the move made by the Presbyterian brethren, but, nevertheless, he was unable to agree with their conclusions, believing that the Bible teaches otherwise. He realized that the Presbyterian view of Election made it difficult for them to deal with the non-elect, both adults and infants. He found the Scriptures declaring that God is selecting, or electing the Church from amongst the world. He conceded that those not elected would be properly termed non-elect. But he found nothing in the Bible to indicate that non-election to joint-heirship in Messiah's Kingdom would mean predestination to an eternity of torture.

The Pastor realized, too, that the Presbyterian friends must feel considerable embarrassment in trying to adjust themselves to their changed creed. For if there are no non-elect infants, then all infants are elect; and if elect when infants, how could their predestination change with advancing years? His sympathetic advice to Presbyterian brethren is, that the entire creed be recast; or, better still, that it and all other creeds be abandoned, and the Bible as a whole be accepted. Then, he argued, all Bible students could come together without prejudice for mutual assistance and untrammelled growth in grace along Bible lines.

While the Pastor mentioned Presbyterians, his thought included all Christians. For surely many others than Presbyterians have been consigning adults and infants to the number of at least 90,000 every day, or 32,000,000 every year, to eternal torture, if not because non-elect, but because unregenerate, or unbaptized. Surely all intelligent people are not of accord with such a proposition. Surely all must agree that some great mistake has been made during the Dark Ages, and that under the influence of that mistake, as expressed in our creeds, our God has been slandered. Surely to-day every thinking person will concede that a human being planning such atrocities would be a thousand times more devilish than any one known in history. And surely our great God, our Creator, could not be worse than the worst and most depraved of all His creatures.

On the contrary, God must of necessity be the very personification of all the graces—Justice, Wisdom, Love and Power. Evidently the God who foreknew and determined to send these 32,000,000 human beings per year to an eternity of torture would not only not be a God at all, but would be the most terrible devil that the human mind could conceive!

Bible Students are realizing that a great mistake has occurred, and that the Bible teaches nothing of the kind we have supposed. More and more, as the eyes of their understanding open to proper interpretations of God's Word, they are appreciating the Divine character, and the Bible as never before.

The Pastor declared that a week from now he will consider some of the Master's dark sayings, and show how they have been misinterpreted and misapplied. To-day he must content himself with the subject in hand. He must discuss God's relationship to the heathen and to infants.

As we understand it, said the Pastor, our Presbyterian friends have changed the statement of the creed, which formerly read, "Elect infants dying in infancy are saved"—taking out the word "elect," and letting it read, "Infants dying in infancy are saved." But is this true? Do our Presbyterian friends believe this?

Come, let us reason together. Are not the children as well as the more matured members of Adam's family born in sin and misshapen in iniquity? Are not all of these by nature "children of wrath"? Did not every member of Adam's family come under his sentence and participate in the penalty, or curse, of his sin—"Dying, thou shalt die"? Is not this the reason that infants die at all? Will not all concede that had there been no sin there would have been no death in the human family? Does not St. Paul distinctly state this saying, "By one man's disobedience sin entered the world, and death as the result of sin, and thus death passed upon all men, because all are sinners"—Romans 5:12; Psalm 51:5.

Surely all Christian people, Presbyterians especially, will agree with me that the sentence of death passed upon Father Adam and inherited by his race, must needs be settled, cancelled, before any of his posterity, old or young, could be released from the penalty. True, we all agree that the death of the Lord Jesus Christ is the redemption-price and that He provided it more than eighteen centuries ago. But do we not also agree that Jesus' death, of itself, saves nobody; that His merit becomes applicable merely to us of the Church at such time as we believe in it and accept it, appropriating it to ourselves?

Is not this the proclamation of the Gospel Age—Believe! Believe! Do we not remember the Bible declaration that we are justified by faith? But by being infants? And do we not all agree that faith cannot be exercised except by a more or less developed mind? Hence all should agree that the Scriptural proposition is, that all infants shared in Adam's sentence of death, and have provision also in the redemptive work of Jesus. Nevertheless, they can be saved only by coming to a knowledge of God and of Jesus, and by then exercising faith and obedience to the extent of ability. We believe this to be an undebatable proposition.

If this be so then our Presbyterian brethren overstate the matter when they declare that all infants dying in infancy are saved. They might very properly say, All infants dying in infancy, and everybody else, come under the provision of Divine grace in Christ, and must all be brought to a knowledge of the Truth, that they may be saved; and then when thus brought to know the Lord and the terms of salvation, the results will depend upon themselves. If they accept, they may have the everlasting life provided; if they reject, they will experience the Second Death.

We have already intimated the teaching of the Bible. All mankind came under the Divine curse, or sentence of death—not eternal torment. "In due time Christ died for the ungodly"—for every one of them—for all those who lived before His crucifixion, and for all born since—for white and black, old and young—of every nation. Because of this general redemption, co-extensive with the curse, or sentence of death, there is to be a recovery from the curse of death. All mankind are thus to be made amenable to a release from the death penalty—to have the opportunity of a resurrection out of sin and death conditions back to perfect life conditions. Only those who wilfully and intelligently reject this grace of God will die the Second Death—be blotted out as though they had never been—perish like natural brute beasts.—2 Peter 2:12.

From this standpoint we see that nobody is saved yet. All—both infants and adults, heathen and Christians—go to Sheol, Hades, the tomb, the state of death. All are said to sleep in Sheol, Hades, the tomb, until the glorious Morning of the New Dispensation, Messiah's Kingdom of glory. Then the Church will constitute the First Resurrection class, to His heavenly glories and honors and Divine nature. Following this, the Church with her Lord will reign as kings and priests, for the blessing of the entire human family, of all ages, nationalities and colors.

In other words, according to the Bible none have gone to Heaven. As Jesus said, "No man hath ascended into Heaven." (John 3:13.) Hence there are no infants in Heaven. All infants who have died have gone to the Bible hell, the tomb, and "know not anything." They merely await the time when the Kingdom shall be in power, and the awakening processes shall begin to operate; and they shall come forth from death—each in his own band, or company.—1 Corinthians 15:23; John 5:28, 29.

There is another theological theory, which has no Scriptural foundation, but which claims that every infant is immortal, and that the present life, long or short, favorable or unfavorable, constitutes the only opportunity ever to be enjoyed for reforming character and becoming fit for a happy eternity. Hence, according to this unscriptural theory, the children of unbelievers—conceived and born in sin and depravity as are all mankind, more or less—are unprepared for an eternity of bliss, and consequently must spend that eternity in pain and horror.

But let us rid the mind of this false theory, and go by Scripture alone. As the Word of God declares, "God only hath immortality." Therefore no infants are immortal. When God said, "The soul that sinneth it shall die," He meant it. When He declared, "All the wicked will I destroy," He meant it. The penalty upon Adam and his race is death, and therefore children and all others die because of Adam's sin. The worst that can befall the children of unbelievers would be death.

What, then, is the Scriptural hope for the children of unbelievers? It is exactly the same as for the children of saints; namely, that Christ Jesus our Lord tasted death for every man when He tasted death for Adam; for all are under Adam's sentence of condemnation to death. One man's sin brought the death penalty upon all; therefore the one man's Ransom was the Ransom for all. The children of unbelievers were redeemed in the most absolute sense from the entire condemnation of death. Indeed, none, but sinners were redeemed. "Christ died for the ungodly." Hence, all die; and all need to be redeemed, else they would have no hope of a resurrection.

In the Messianic Kingdom, the Resurrection Age, children of believers will have a little advantage over the children of unbelievers, in that they will have less depraved organisms when awakened. But under the grand resurrection processes then at work, such disadvantages will soon be overcome. All who are willing and obedient shall be brought to a full knowledge of the Truth and full opportunities for complete restitution, back to all that was lost in Adam, for himself and his posterity. In that day it will no more be said, The fathers have eaten a sour grape, and the children's teeth are set on edge. "Every one shall die for his own iniquity." "The soul that sinneth it shall die."—Jeremiah 31:29, 30; Ezekiel 18:24.

How reasonable are the ways of God! How plainly are they stated in the Word! Those who have the eye and the ear of faith, who are hearkening to the Word of the living God rather than to the dead creeds of the Dark Ages have a joy and peace of mind which is a source of strength unknown to others.

According to the Divine arrangement, parents are responsible in respect to their children. The conscientious parent has a wonderful opportunity to train his children in the nurture and admonition of the Lord. The Christian parent should earnestly seek for the wisdom from above, that he may be able to rightly discharge his duties under all circumstances, even the most trying.

The Apostle clearly distinguishes between the children of believers and the children of unbelievers. His argument is that the children of unbelievers are without any relationship to God, and without any supervision from Him; while the children of believers, because of parental relationship, are subjects of Divine supervision and care. For these as for their parents all things work together for good—for their welfare. This Divine supervision on account of their parents will, of course, terminate when the individual child comes to years of discretion and responsibility. Then they must enter into personal relationship with God, or, like the remainder of the world, be outside of any relationship with Him, until the Day of Christ, a thousand years long.

Hamlet in the Movies.

In September next a film will be released which will undoubtedly arouse world-wide interest. It will show Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson and the members of his company in the play of "Hamlet," and when completed the film will be the most perfect yet put into circulation. Ten thousand pounds is being spent on the making of this film. Sir Johnston has taken the keenest interest in its production and some idea of his untiring energy may be gathered from the fact that on one scene two days were expended.

In Harmony With the Typewriter.

Dobson had just bought a new typewriting machine. "Now, what color ribbon do you want for this machine?" asked the salesman. "O, black, by all means!" said Dobson. "You see, my typewriter is a widow."

TAMED THE OLD SOLDIER.

He Was Not "A Beggar," but Carmen Sylva Became One.

One day, walking in a hospital ward, the queen of Roumania came upon an old soldier suffering from a compound fracture of the leg and threatened with gangrene. He would not give consent to the surgeons to amputate. He feared that should he do so he would be classed among the beggars. "I am not a beggar," said the stout old soldier proudly. "I'll lose my life, but not my honor."

"'Tis true," said Carmen Sylva, "you are not a beggar, but I am." She threw herself on her knees at the bedside. "I have never prayed but to God," and, taking his hand, she added: "But I now supplicate you to listen to my wish and mine. Let your leg be taken off and spare your life to your family, your country and to me, and—"

"And, if I consent, what then?" "What then?" she exclaimed joyfully. "Why, I shall give you the most beautiful artificial leg that can be made in Europe, and when the war is over you shall come and dance at the palace with your sons."

"I consent," he said softly, "but you must hold my hand during the operation."—T. P.'s London Weekly.

"JUMP, JUDY, JUMP!"

Dancing in London in the Early Part of the Last Century.

Lady Bell, writing in the London Times regarding the modern dance, quotes extracts from "The Letter Bag of Lady Elizabeth Spencer Stanhope." The following passages are taken from a letter written in 1812:

"Lady Elizabeth gave a very successful ball, where, for the first time in London, the polka was danced in public and people stood upon the chairs and rout seats to watch it. . . . Mr. Theodore Hook declared that the obnoxious dance was calculated to lead to the most licentious consequences. . . . Subsequently the Sporting Magazine . . . denounced the dance which, to the disgrace of sense and taste, has obtruded itself into the whole circle of the fashionable world. . . . a will corrupting dance, . . . a compound of immodest gesture and in factious poison."

On the other hand, I must also quote from the same work the admonition of an Irish lady of that period at a ball to her daughter, who was not displaying enough spirit in her dancing: "Jump, Judy, jump! The guardsmen are looking on!"

Intellectual Humor.

The region of intellectual humor, which may be roughly illustrated by such sayings as that of George Sand that nothing is such a restorative as rhetoric or the claim advanced by a patriot that Shakespeare was undoubtedly a Scotchman on the ground that his talents would justify the supposition. The humor of George Sand's epigram depends upon the perception that rhetoric, which ought to be based upon a profound conviction, an overwhelming passion, an intense enthusiasm, is often little more than the abandonment of a personality to a mood of intoxicating ebullience, while the humor of the Shakespeare story lies in a sense of the way in which a national predilection will override all reasonable evidence.—A. C. Benson in "A/ Large."

The Scotch Invaders.

One of the most valiant defenders of the Scots parliament was Lord Belhaven, who delivered an eloquent oration in which a vision of Scotland undone by English invaders filled the bill. He saw poor Caledonia overrun by English traders, English attorneys, English judges—the whole nation, in fact, looking in vain for work because England had sent her aliens into every town to fill the fat places. The alarming speech produced a profound effect until Lord Marchmont suggested that Belhaven should add, "I awoke, and behold it was a dream!" And a dream it has proved, if we interpret dreams in the usual way, by contraries.—London Chronicle.

Getting Round It.

A young lady was critically examining a pair of shoes which the clerk had just fitted on. She carefully scrutinized first one foot, then the other. Finally she said slowly:

"Don't you think one of my feet is larger than the other?"

"No, indeed, madam!" replied the would be diplomatic clerk. "On the contrary, I think one is smaller than the other."—Lippincott's.

What the Trouble Was.

A man was fixing his automobile. "Trouble?" asked a bystander. "Some," was the laconic answer. "What power car is it?" "Forty horse," came the answer. "What seems to be the matter with it?"

"Well, from the way she acts I should say that thirty-nine of the horses were dead."

Lost His Rudder.

"Dinkie says he doesn't know what to do with himself when his wife's out of town."

"I'm not surprised. However, he knows what to do with himself when she's in town, because she tells him."

Cane Sugar.

Pure cane sugar consists of a mass of white crystals (e. g., the old fashioned "rock candy") easily soluble in about half their weight of cold or in a small quantity of hot water. Cane sugar is about two and one-half times as sweet as grape sugar.

Cactus Fiber in a Bridge.

A river in Peru is spanned by a bridge more than 200 feet in length which is suspended from thirty-two ropes made from cactus fiber.

Deep Water Divers.

The greatest depth ever reached by a diver is said to be 204 feet. The greatest depth at which useful work has been done is 182 feet. Sponge and pearl divers, working without armor, frequently descend to depths of 150 feet.

France in Africa.

French equatorial Africa is about three times the size of the mother country and has a population of nearly 6,000,000.

Wood Fibers.

The fibers of wood are strongest near the center of the trunk.

Substitute For Whipped Cream.

Add a sliced banana to the white or one egg and beat until stiff. The banana will entirely dissolve, and you will have a delicious substitute for whipped cream.

An Odd Looking Tree.

The giant pine at Wakanoura, near Osaka, Japan, is a remarkable tree, the main stem of which rises from a mass of roots more than ten feet above the ground. These resemble the tentacles of a giant octopus or devil fish, giving it a weird and uncanny appearance.

Divorces.

Divorces annually average seventy-three to each 100,000 of population in the United States. In Austria the average is one.

Cement Hitching Post.

You can make a substantial and good looking hitching post by filling a nail keg with soft cement, inserting an iron ring in it, and when thoroughly hard knock the keg apart. It can be moved about, but no horse can get away from it.

Boiled Eggs.

It is quite a mistaken idea to suppose that an egg boiled for half an hour will be hard of digestion and lie like a heavy weight on the stomach. As a matter of fact, eggs cooked for that length of time are very easily digested, and in many of the big hospitals eggs are generally cooked this way for patients.

When Metals Boil.

The boiling points of metals are as follows: Aluminum, 1,800 degrees C.; copper, 2,310 degrees C.; iron, 2,450 degrees C.; lead, 1,525 degrees C.; silver, 1,955 degrees C.; tin, 2,270 degrees C.

Russian Betrothal Feast.

A Russian wedding culminates in the betrothal feast, at which the bride elect cuts off a long tress of hair and gives it to her betrothed, who, in turn, presents the bride elect with bread and salt, an almond cake and a silver ring set with a turquoise.

Muskrats.

Young muskrats are very gentle and playful and may be handled without fear. They do not grow fierce with age if reared in captivity and accustomed to gentle treatment.

Fashionable Shoemaking.

A curious craze swept over fashionable society in England in 1800, which absorbed the attention of the smart world. A mania for making shoes suddenly obsessed society. Lessons in the art were demanded on all sides, and the shoemakers were so busy in giving instructions that they had no time to practice their craft. Both men and women succumbed to this "raze."

Sandals.

The ancient Greeks and Egyptians wore the simple sandal. The Assyrians first introduced the heel for security and comfort in walking.

Coffee.

The first mention of coffee in English statute books is in the year 1690, when a duty of fourpence was laid on every gallon of coffee made and sold, and in 1705 King Charles issued a proclamation shutting up the coffee houses because they were seminaries of sedition. The French first conveyed some coffee plants to Martinique in 1727, whence they probably spread to the neighboring islands.

Eyelashes.

The eyelashes give most useful aid in shading the eyes. The average person has 100 or 150 hairs on the upper lid and 80 or 100 on the lower, or say, 450 to 500 lashes in all.

Society of the Cincinnati.

The Society of the Cincinnati was an order established by the officers of the Revolutionary army in 1783 to perpetuate their friendship and to raise funds for the relief of the widows and orphans of those who had fallen during the war. It was so named because it included patriots headed by Washington, between whom and the old Roman farmer-general, Cincinnati, there were supposed to be many resemblances.

Small Observances of Society.

While there are many small observances of the rules of society, some need but little consideration, while others, seemingly of almost no importance, take their place as a necessity, and their observance marks the difference between those who know and those who do not the "proper thing" to do.

Among these the apparently simple matter of learning never to stare at those passed in daily going about is perhaps one of the easiest yet most neglected. It is exceedingly poor taste to turn about staring at any one after passing; also to look with any evidence of strong interest at a deformed or otherwise crippled person met at any time or place. Such as these are exquisitely sensitive, and to stare at them or to make remarks, even if in a low tone, is the height of impoliteness. To be impolite is to be rude; rudeness is evidence of lack of good breeding; therefore it is a breach of etiquette to let any one that is lame or in any way afflicted bodily feel that he or she is being commented upon.

Another breach that is very often committed without the realization of its impropriety is the pointing at objects when passing along a crowded thoroughfare. To walk abreast when on a crowded street often gives inconvenience to passersby. Therefore it is incorrect, as the perfectly bred and innately polite person makes it an imperative rule never to inconvenience anybody. The man who steps aside for a conductor or any official that is pursuing his duty is the well bred man. He does not stop to think of his own social position, but follows the proper instincts of propriety and politeness by not hindering the person who is about his business.

A lady bows first to a man, thereby showing him that she chooses to recognize him. If by any chance she fails to do this a man may quickly see that it is not intentional, and he should not take offense. In meeting it is considered better form to turn and walk, if but a few steps, with a friend in the direction he or she is going rather than to stand where the sidewalk may be obstructed. In fact, it requires all the smaller, apparently insignificant things to make life in a crowded place worth while at all. There is so much traffic, so many people, all bent upon their own special errands, that to forget and stand in the way, to stare or to talk loud and to point are all breaches to be avoided.

Good Form In Luggage.

For the week end trip there is devised a small case made of cretonne and rubber lined. Within this case are provided loops which hold a miniature box of talcum powder and a tube of tooth paste and other ultra small sized toilet articles, including the toothbrush. Thus one finds one's needed items compactly at hand when in requisition for dressing or packing. When one has such convenient methods of holding one's things together one is less likely to forget tiny articles when they are to be gathered together for the traveling bag.

For the visitor to the seaside, whether for the day or week end, there is an imported case of tan leather which will greatly add to the comfort of the possessor. This is about the size and shape of a small suit case and opens in the same way. Within is a rubber lining, which is cloth covered and adjustable over the wet bathing suit. In the cover of the suit case are fitted a mirror, a comb, scissors, a package of hairpins, safety pins, both black and white, and court plaster. Complete, this costs $15, but it is well worth the amount.

The newest suit cases, trunks and bags are made of bright red leather, rather startling to the casual observer, but for those familiar with the difficulties in sorting European baggage not such an altogether to be despised notion. Smaller items are also made in this color.

Week End Invitations.

A great deal of courtesy is required from those who accept invitations to house parties or for a couple of weeks' stay with friends. There are too many who forget that by making themselves agreeable they stand a much greater chance of being favored with many such invitations. They take for granted anything pleasant that comes and decline to make a return in the way of giving as little trouble as possible, and more especially in doing everything possible in assisting a hostess in her entertaining.

To demand a great deal at any resort is to show that one is not really accustomed to very much at home, instead of being a proof that the opposite is the case. The person who finds fault with not only the food, but with surroundings generally, the weather, or the noises, or the dampness, or the heat, or anything that must be in the nature of things expected, soon is left off the list of those who need look for invitations now and again. And if they are ambitious of being asked again they had better alter their policy. A little tactful handling of unpleasant situations has been known to work wonders in this as in other social details.

seen this year. When seen Mr. Mace said it was only some of his ordinary spurs, but that shortly he would bring in some big ones. If these first ones are ordinary—well, we may as well warn our neighbors that we will be borrowing their wash-tubs to hold the big ones.

The Marquis wheat on the "home farm" of the reserve was threshed last week, the yield for the 21 acres averaging 36½ bushels per acre. This was the field which won second prize in the Standing Grain Competition, and which the judge estimated at 25 bushels per acre. Twenty-six acres of oats went 80 bushels to the acre. These crops were on last year's breaking, and we are told that there are plenty of other yields similar on the reserve.

Let us hear from other farmers as to their yield, etc.

There was an interesting sight Saturday from the top story of the CALL office. Looking south, north, east and west one could see the dust flying from no less than six threshing outfits. The best of it is that the grain pouring out of these separators is all in good condition and of high grade.

This is the time of year when some farmers come to town with a load of new wheat and go home with a load of "good old rye."

LOCAL AND GENERAL

Kenneth Brown was sent up for trial Monday on a charge of forging cheques on W. D. Trego and J.W. Burr, which he cashed at the Gleichen Hotel and the Gleichen Trading Co. Corporal Irvine had him captured at High River.

A man by the name of Carlson was fined Tuesday morning $50 for being drunk and disorderly and resisting the police. In resisting our Chief he made a sad mistake in attempting to scratch his eyes out for Jack put him to sleep and gently carried him into the cell. Mr. Carlson is now wondering which hurt the most the fine or the resistance.

OUR WATERWAYS

Their Development of Great Interest to all Parts of Canada

The development of Canada's inland waterways should be proceeded with. A pamphlet lately issued by the Great Waterways Union deals with the problem in a comprehensive and convincing manner. Transportation, we are reminded, is the most important material and economic question before the people to-day. Transportation by water on a first-class shipway is not only cheaper than by rail but often much quicker. According to the United States Interstate Commerce Commission, the average cost of moving freight by rail in a recent year was 7.43 mills per ton per mile. For the same year the cost of moving freight by the Sault Ste. Marie Canal route was 81 of one mill per ton per mile, or one-ninth of the average rail rate. The average cost of handling freight by the various water ways of the United States is one-sixth of what it is by the railways. All money spent on the improvement of American waterways has returned to the people of the United States dividends of 100 to 200 per cent. annually in reduced freight rates.

From Lake Superior Westward

In European countries where the people own and operate the railways, the most is made of natural water transportation for the benefit of trade and the general public. In countries, however, where railways are operated chiefly by private corporations, natural advantages are more likely to be neglected. The result of this neglect in Canada is to be seen not only in the inadequate development of water connection from Montreal to the Upper Lakes. It is quite as noticeable in the failure to provide water transportation from Lake Superior to the Western Provinces via the Lake of the Woods, Lake Winnipeg, the Saskatchewan and other rivers. Were this route developed, not only would it provide for an enormously increased volume of traffic, especially of grain and coal, but it would result in a great lowering of the freight charges by the railways.

Through the Prairies

As to the feasibility of water transportation across the Canadian prairies, Sir Robert W. Perks, of London, England, writes: "Whenever I have been out West I have been struck with the fact that no organized and effective effort has hitherto been made to use those magnificent waterways. I do not know whether you have ever been down the Danube as I have been, and watched the huge flat barges carrying very often 3,000 tons, half a dozen of them in tow of a small tug, and all laden with grain. The cost of carrying grain by this method is infinitesimal; and were a system of this sort adopted in the West, the value to the vast grain-growing Prairie Provinces would be incalculable." Professor A. B. Willmott believes that a barge canal may easily be built at small expense from Edmonton to Winnipeg, and adds that a similar waterway from Winnipeg to the head of Lake Superior would, if constructed at reasonable cost, indefinitely lower freight charges.

REVIVE FARMING

The Need of Getting in Touch With the Most Progressive Farmers

Mr. Roosevelt has summed up the need for a "revival" of farming in the following words: "The English-speaking peoples, not only in America but of Great Britain and the colonies, must wake up to the fact that for over half a century every wise advance in the line of proper development of farming life has taken place in certain progressive States of Continental Europe. . . . I hope a very full study will be made of the rural situation, because in that country most progressive farmers are reorganizing their business upon lines laid down after a study of the continental agricultural systems I have mentioned." That Canada is in the same position as the United States so far as the need for reform is concerned may be accepted without question. During ten months of last year this agricultural country, which hopes to be "the bread basket of the Empire," imported eleven million dozen of eggs, and millions of pounds of butter. Something is radically wrong when a rich farming country cannot feed itself. Saskatchewan appointed two delegates to accompany an American Commission of Inquiry which sailed for Europe this spring. Every other Province of Canada should be represented as well. The expense is not heavy, and the opportunities for investigation will be exceptionally great.

The Northwest Brass Foundry Company, Limited, operating a present thirteen factories in the United States and two in Canada, will establish a plant in Calgary, costing $300,000, and employing 500 men.
